

REMARKS

This is response to the Office Action mailed April 7, 2006. Applicants have amended claim 1 to more clearly point out the invention. In particular, unlike the cited references, the present invention automatically cause one of the two contacts to lift off the corresponding contact once the connector is placed into its final mating position. The prior art does not suggest, teach or imply such a feature.

Accordingly, in light of the above remarks, it is respectfully submitted that the Examiner's objections have been obviated. Therefore Applicants believe that the present application is in condition for allowance, which allowance is earnestly solicited.
